This is a 28,000 word count standalone novella

Eighteen-year-old orphan, Lana Claire, drinks too much and parties too hard. She drowns her worries in the pleasures of life. When a crazy encounter at a new bar ends with bodies littering the ground, Lana wonders if she may have discovered a path that leads to answers she desperately needs.

Never one to walk blind, she treads carefully. What she finds is more than she ever hoped for. Lana knew she wasn't human, but an entire community of others like herself blows her mind. And the men! Heat and passion burn bright when Valan men are on the hunt for their mate, but Lana never expected to be the spark for two of their hottest playboys. More than ready to sizzle with the alphas of Valan, Lana does what she always does. She dives right in.

A captivating and enchanting world I would love to hear more from!

By Linda

Heep! Another spanking new enchanting world created by the lovely Scarlett Dawn! I have this thing with NA Paranormal Romances. Together with NA Contemporary Romance it is my favorite – but I've only come across a handful I genuinely enjoy. The Forever Evermore series is at the very top of that list. So imagine my excitement when I heard SD was participating in a NA Paranormal anthology!

I'm usually not the biggest fan of anthologies, because short stories generally don't do it for me. Serials are different because the story continues over several volumes. With a short story, that one (oh-so-short) story is usually what you get, and at least for me that is not enough. So after I figured that out I decided to steer clear of anthologies – unless it's a story from an author I trust. Which is exactly why I'm reviewing this.

I loved the introduction to this story. It reminded me a lot of the world of the Forever Evermore series, and that thrilled me to no end (factions, mates, kings and queens are back!). It was an intriguing world I would very much like to hear more from in the future, even if it's from different characters. I would like to know more about how everything works, more about the different factions and how they live. But at the same time as I felt like the surface was barely scratched, I was also happy I didn't receive a history lesson I didn't sign up for. I liked the way we were thrown right into it and learned as we went. But I still think there is lots more to discover and experience, and would love to read more from Valan (yeah, I don't know how to properly use that word in a sentence...).

What we did learn is that in this world there are eight factions. Four for women and four for men. It said "one created to the likeness of the other, even though 'matings' didn't always occur within a like-to-like faction". The female factions were: Vampire, Witch, Mermaid and Valkyrie. Male factions: Demon, Warlock, Shifter and Angel. What's cool is that they're not as estranged from each other as the Mys factions are in the Forever Evermore series, where mixing is a huge no-no.

This story focused on Lana, who is Valkyrie, and her two love interests. Yup, we're talking m-f-m. Fair warning – it gets intense! My favorite part of this story was the endless banter between the two love interests. They were very entertaining! The more steamy scenes didn't hurt either.

The story turned out a lot differently than what my first impression implied (I may have only barely skimmed the blurb). In the first few chapters I got vibes comparable to a mix between the Forever Evermore series and the Dark Elements series (Jennifer L. Armentrout), but it soon turned less innocent and a whole lot raunchier (The Dark Elements is YA).

As SD's other stories this one sucked me in immediately, and it captivated me all the way to the end. A definite enjoyable read, and I can't say it enough: I would absolutely love to read more from this world. It's way too intriguing for this to be it!

Unique Paranormal World

By Carrie Williams

I received a copy of this book in exchange for an honest review.

This was a super quick, dirty, paranormal read. There's M/F/M action and a bit of introduction to this new world thrown in, too. Overall, I'm intrigued by the world of the Valan.

Lana is an orphan who has a drinking problem. She drinks a lot. It's mentioned a lot in the book. I'm a little conflicted about it, but she's eighteen (so I guess it's not that bad?) and has a troubled life, so she gets some leeway in the story. She's also got a bad habit of making lightning show up. Of course, this isn't normal, but she's never had any other explanation in her life until she stumbles into the world of the Valan, a unique group of all sorts of paranormals. One thing they all have in common, though, is the hunt for their mate.

While attending (and drinking... lots of drinking...), Lana ends up meeting two Kings of their respective races. They're all drawn to one another, despite their different dispositions. Somehow, these three end up finding their way together in a bit of an unconventional way even among the Valan. Lana's siren song manages to bring together the most unlikely of bedmates and even manages to show them the beauty of the human race (I think).

The book itself was a really short read with a little bit of a quickie finish at the end. Will this be a series? I kind of want to see more of this world with all its supernatural inhabitants...

another home run!

By Cynthia

Scarlet Dawn is one of my favorite authors. Her universe building skills are in a rare class with JR Ward, Christine Feehan and Sherrilyn Kenyon. I hope this is the only story we get from this universe.
